

COPPER/COPPER SULFATE REFERENCE ELECTRODES

DATA SHEET

Copper sulfate electrode (CSE) is the most commonly used reference electrode for measuring potentials of underground structures and also for those exposed to freshwater. We manufacture a complete line of Cu/CuSO₄ electrodes in both buried and portable types.

SILVER/SILVER CHLORIDE REFERENCE ELECTRODES

DATA SHEET

The silver-silver chloride (Ag/AgCl) electrode is by far the most popular type of reference electrode designed for use in high-chloride conditions, such as seawater environments, concrete structures, etc. It is constructed from a silver wire, part of which is 'chloridized' (covered with finely divided silver chloride).

■ Portable Silver/Silver Chloride Reference Electrode

ZINC REFERENCE ELECTRODES

DATA SHEET

Having the longest life of any of the permanent type reference electrodes, high-purity zinc electrode is used for onshore and offshore corrosion potential measurement. Packaged zinc electrode is preferred to measure potentials on buried metallic structures. While probe zinc electrode is generally applied to internally protected steel water boxes, tanks, pipes, etc.
